LATAKIA, SYRIA

THE WORLD'S MOST DANGEROUS WINE

A BS SUGGESTION

Karim and Sandro Saade have not been able to visit their vineyard for seven years, but they still continue to make the wine each vintage by phone

The Saade's vineyard is in north west Syria, on the slopes of the coastal mountain range. It is currently Syria's only surviving commercial winery.

Since war broke out in March 2011, the Saade brothers have been unable to take the road north through Tripoli, from their base in Beirut, into Syria to inspect vines or make the wine as it is too dangerous.

They communicate with their Syrian winemaking team remotely.

"What started as a venture has turned into a challenge. An act of perseverance", say the Saades. Don't like risk but do like wine? Then just come dine with us and have a bottle, it's safer that way.
